

INSECTS ARE DOING LITTLE DAMAGE IN NAVARRO COUNTY

FEED CROP REPORTED AS BEING BEST IN MANY YEARS
FOR ENTIRE COUNTY

Navarro county cotton producers are not being bothered appreciably with threats of insect damage, H. C. Robinson, county agent, stated Monday morning when queried as to the condition of cotton and other crops in the county at the present time.

The county agent said that taken as a whole, the feed crop, according to farmers from all sections of the county, is the best in many years.

There were grasshopper complaints early in the season, but the damage has been slight due to the early poisoning in the infested areas. Another factor advanced as aiding the cotton is the fact that the hoppers have remained in the green pastures. The pasture lands where the hoppers are the most plentiful have remained green due to the frequent rains.

Fleashoppers are reported in some cotton, but they have not become serious and the same statement was made about boll weevils.

COTTON ACREAGE NOTICES ARE BEING MAILED TO FARMERS

Cotton acreage notices for the individual farms in Navarro county for 1938 were being mailed to the farmers Monday from the cotton office headquarters in the courthouse. This announcement was made by H. C. Robinson, county agent.

These notices will advise the producers the number of acres of the individual farms that can be planted in cotton and comply with the 1938 allotment.

The Navarro county average is slightly in excess of 41 per cent of the tillable lands, Robinson pointed out, and is a higher percentage allowable in cotton than is found in surrounding counties. Farmers planting in cotton for 1938 the amount designated in these notices can enjoy the full benefits of the compliance program without any restrictions or penalties.

LARGE AUDIENCES CHURCH OF CHRIST SERVICES SUNDAY

Although every Lord's day during May and June has witnessed an overflow audience at the Fifth Avenue Church of Christ, the crowd yesterday morning was one of the largest for that period. The Bible school also enjoyed fine attendance, there being 235 percent for the classes. At the morning service, Leslie G. Thomas, the regular minister, spoke on the "What is the Christ?" This lesson followed, in regular succession, the one delivered last Lord's day on "The Parable of the Talents," the aim of both being to emphasize personal responsibility.

Another large audience last night heard the minister speak on "The Gospel in Old Testament Example." After quoting Paul's language to show that whatever these words were written afore time were written for our learning, he pointed out the similarity between the cleansing of Naaman from leprosy our cleansing from sin.

New seats for the balcony have been ordered and it will be completely re-seated with modern, comfortable opera chairs for the comfort and convenience of the overflow crowds. The leaders are also carrying on other extensive alterations in the building.

The mid-week Gospel service will be conducted Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and the time will be given to answering questions which have been handed to the minister. The public is cordially invited to attend every service.

CORSICANA ON TOURIST ROUTE

Corsicana occupies a strategic position on the tourist routes recommended by the Colorado to Gulf Highway association to travelers between the Rocky mountain area and the Texas coastal sectors. With the completion of highway 22 between Corsicana and Palestine within the near future, the position of this city will become more important as a junction. The strip-map shown above has been adopted as the official routing of the highway association and a campaign is now under way to attract additional travel over the designated highways. Distribution of several thousand strip map folders which will have numerous pictures as well as the map is expected to start shortly.

MARSHALL DECLARES POLITICAL OBSERVERS SEE O'DANIEL AMONG FIRST DIVISION FOR GOVERNOR

By HOWARD MARSHALL
AUSTIN, June 27.—(AP)—"This Man O'Daniel" is creating a stir in Texas politics.

One of his opponents for the governorship has been attorney general for four years, another is a veteran member of the state railroad commission and chairman of the interstate oil compact commission and a third has been before the people three times in races for governor, but many unprejudiced observers believe W. Lee O'Daniel of Fort Worth will be in the "first division" of the gubernatorial contest.

O'Daniel is reported to be drawing large crowds and the men and women in the forks of the creek are discussing him. Crowds are not necessarily mean votes but they are signs he is attracting a lot of attention, which is what every candidate wants at this stage of the race.

The interest in O'Daniel is compared to that which James E. Ferguson aroused in his first campaign for governor in 1914. However, the record shows that Ferguson in that and subsequent campaigns often drew larger crowds than his opponents in sections which he lost.

Two Austin newspapermen made a tour of a number of towns near the capital the other day in an effort to see what people in the section thought of the contest for governor.

A Burnett business man who keeps in close touch with politics made the comparison between O'Daniel's and Ferguson's campaign.

"The fire seems to be spreading just like it did then," this man said, "although it may not go nearly as far."

A former attorney general of Texas observed waiting in the ante-chamber to Gov. James V. Allred's office, was asked: "What do you think of O'Daniel?"

O'Daniel's appeal, the former attorney general said, has "an element of morality that politicians long have ignored."

The pendulum is swinging away from the jazz and the kind of beauty which the cities are interested in a man who is getting back to fundamentals," he said.

Gov. Allred received a telegram signed "Hilly Billy Boys," saying they were sending him a sack of flour.

"We want you to leave some hot biscuits on the table for the next governor," the telegram read.

O'Daniel is a flour mill executive. Members of an orchestra which plays on O'Daniel broadcast program and his platform speeches are called the Hilly Billy Boys.

Rep. Eugene Worley of Shamrock, chairman of the oil and gas committee of the house of representatives, is one of the few representatives seeking more than a second term who has no opposition.

His next term would be his third. He has four counties in his district, Wheeler, Collingsworth, Donley and Gray.

A nationwide campaign to stimulate the use of grapefruit juice, a record amount of which was packed in Texas this year, has been decided upon by grapefruit growers of the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

One step will be to ask grocery stores to feature grapefruit juice this summer.

Organization of the Texas grapefruit growers stabilization committee was perfected at Waco recently with R. W. Lindsay of Mission elected chairman and Glenn G. White of Weslaco secretary.

Speakers said 4,700,000 cases, or more than 100,000,000 cans, were packed this year compared with 2,200,000 cases last year.

A resolution asking co-operation of Texas stores said the present rate of sale would leave a large carryover of grapefruit juice which would depress the whole market for citrus products.

JOHNSON OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN AT FROST ROOSEVELT PRAISED

EVERY COUNTY IN DISTRICT SENDS LARGE DELEGATIONS TO RALLY

By CHARLTON GUNTER

FROST, June 25.—Before a large crowd, Congressman Luther A. Johnson of Corsicana opened his campaign for re-election as representative from the 11th district of Texas here Friday night, basing his appeal to the voters on the fact that he had always supported and voted for the best interests of the people of the district, his "kept the faith," and wanted to continue his support of the Roosevelt policies of helping the "common man."

Large delegations were present from every county comprising the congressional district which includes Hill, Ellis, Navarro, Limestone, Eastland, Leon, Robertson and Brazos counties. Many of the delegation leaders were given places of honor on the platform during the main address.

Mayor E. D. "Dit" McCormick of Frost, general chairman of the arrangements committee, presided as master of ceremonies for the occasion. The rally, which started at 8 o'clock, during the first hour the crowd was entertained with a concert by the State Home band from Corsicana, under the direction of Joel C. Trimble.

Ballard George Speaks. At 7 o'clock, state, district, county and precinct candidates were given an opportunity to speak. J. Hardy Neal, Dallas attorney and state manager for John Wood, candidate for Railroad Commissioner, presented the claims of his party.

W. George, native of Navarro county, presented his platform in his race for associate justice of the court of civil appeals at the 11th district, county and precinct candidates were only introduced to the crowd and did not speak in order to conserve time.

Embersted, veteran Brazos county farmer from Bryan, was the first speaker in behalf of Congressman Johnson. He acknowledged that George Butler, a native of Brazos county and narrowly nosed out Johnson in the 1936 campaign, but insisted this was a complimentary vote to a home candidate and this year the county would overwhelmingly be listed in the Johnson column.

Clay Bedell, chairman of the Democratic National committee of Hill county, followed with a similar promise that his county would also be found voting heavily in favor of the present incumbent of the congressional post.

Judge J. E. Bradley, mayor of Groesbeck, Limestone county, introduced Congressman Johnson, declaring that he had known him many years and his only "bosses were his conscience and the people of his district." He declared that the representative he endorsed, more service to his district and state than any other congressman from the state.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Johnson declared that no person could really appreciate Texas and its people until they had stayed for a time in other sections of the nation or the world and then returned to his district and state than any other congressman from the state.

News About Business For January-June Is Mostly Bad

But Optimists Find Reasons To Argue Worst Is Over

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Midyear finds higher prices for securities and staples chasing gloom from the business arena.

New year's prophets of a spring recovery from the abrupt slump of last autumn, had red faces when May rolled around and business was flat—statistical barometers showing industrial production the slowest in nearly four years.

But things began to happen in June. Stirrings—not very brisk, to be sure—appeared in several quarters. The volume of merchandise moving over the railroads increased a little. Steel and cotton mills accelerated a bit.

There were a series of price increases in such raw materials as lead, zinc, export copper, rubber, hides.

In the third week of June, a sudden wave of C. A. Jagger bullishness swept over the stock market.

What was happening? An extremely dull summer had been anticipated in many business quarters. General Motors announced its summer shutdowns for model changes would be three weeks longer than usual.

Some saw an important clue in an announcement by the department of commerce that wholesale stocks of merchandise on June 1 were 14 per cent under a year previously.

Heavy building up of inventories—manufacturing more goods than could be sold in the earlier months of 1937 was recognized as a major cause of depression last autumn, were sharply modified.

President Roosevelt thought the new measure let the big fellows get off easily, but permitted it to become law without his signature.

What surprised many

was how slowly they were working.

Most business barometers, aside from residential building, have not come back very far. The seasonally adjusted index of freight movements for the latest week was 67.7 per cent of the 1929-30 average, in surveying the first half of 1938, say the recent improvement can only be taken as a hopeful indicator.

Also, the resumption of pump priming brought no uniform chorus of applause, skeptics complaining that the previous experience with it failed to bring lasting recovery. Nevertheless, regardless of its possible effects upon debt and taxes later on, businessmen waited eagerly for the new orders which might result from it.

The controversy between Big Business and the New Deal over the causes of the slump waxed recurrently warm, with each seemingly determined to boot it to the other's door step.

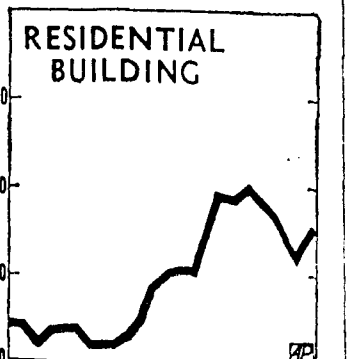

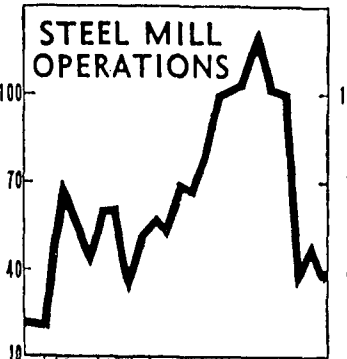

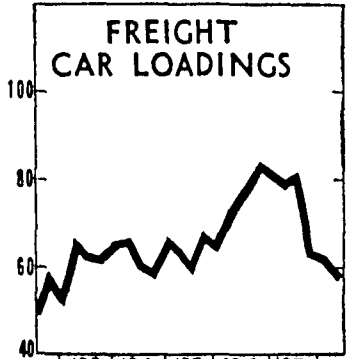

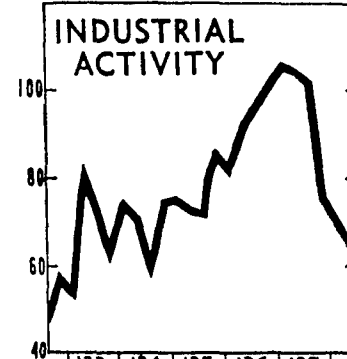

Two Sides To The Question. New Deal spokesmen attributed the slump to "highly undesirable practices" accompanying the rapid recovery in 1936 and 1937, including excessive and speculative manufacturing for inventory, unwarranted price boosting, "monopolistic practices." The administration planned an exhaustive study of monopoly.

Industrialists continued to complain of New Deal controls, insisting that they inhibited business enterprise, blocked the flow of capital, imposed cost rigidity, kept business in a state of uncertainty.

Progress toward composing differences was made on some fronts. Federal tax laws, on which many business leaders jumped as a major cause of depression last autumn, were sharply modified.

President Roosevelt thought the new measure let the big fellows get off easily, but permitted it to become law without his signature.

What surprised many

Depression-Recovery-Recession is clearly traced in the above charts measuring the tempo in industry. Each is based on The Associated Press Index, with 1929-30 as 100. The narrow revival in railroad freight car loadings, compared with the boom in steel mill activity, is held by analysts to be a key to the present precarious financial condition of many roads.

Steel falls back. Steel was hard hit by the automobile slump, and cessation of railroad buying. This basic industry watched helplessly the downturn in building and automobile prospects, but saw little immediate prospect of support from the railroads.

back again to pump priming until April, when President Roosevelt sharply increased relief and public works expenditure, and a reversal of the 1936-37 policy of the Washington banking and money authorities. That policy was to shut off the big unused reservoir of potential credit, to prevent what was then feared might develop into an unhealthy boom.

nature, and called for fresh revision in 1938.

Reforms in Stock Exchange. The New York Stock Exchange, warning to "clean up or else" ringing in its ears, and rocked by the Whitney fiasco, accepted sweeping reforms in its administration, leading the SEC chairman to predict an end of "cracking down" on the big securities mart.

The TVA to some extent appeased power interests in a movement to buy out, rather than run out, privately-owned properties.

Railroads were helped somewhat by an ICC grant of increased freight rates expected to yield more than $200,000,000 annually in increased revenues. But the rail managements found this inadequate, and proposed a 15 per cent cut in wages, in the face of firm opposition from the Brotherhoods.

Utilities and railroads are among the biggest users of heavy materials, and possibilities of stimulating these industries to expand and renovate their equipment were widely surveyed when the slump began last fall.

Curtailed of business as a slump continued, however, tended to offset all that was done to encourage these normally big buyers.

The other big consumer of heavy materials is the building industry, and here the results of recovery efforts were more encouraging. The administration's program of building stimulation, launched last autumn in an effort to stem the tide of depression, resulted in considerable liberalization of Federal Housing Administration lending.

Building did not boom, but during the spring became the outstanding major division of business to show substantial gains. In May, residential building contracts in the 37 states east of the Rockies, according to F. W. Dodge statistics, were the best for any month since June of last year, and about 36 per cent of capacity in the spring, compared with 92 per cent in April of last year.

Lighter lines of industry held up somewhat better, although cotton mill activity has dipped about 12 per cent since the beginning of the year, and has been running lately about 40 per cent under a year ago.

Indications of the using up of unused stocks of goods appeared in the fact that retail trade held up better than production. Department store sales of general merchandise in May were off only 17 per cent from that month of 1937.

Government Reverses Policy. The government did not turn back again to pump priming until April, when President Roosevelt sharply increased relief and public works expenditure, and a reversal of the 1936-37 policy of the Washington banking and money authorities. That policy was to shut off the big unused reservoir of potential credit, to prevent what was then feared might develop into an unhealthy boom.

Those who look hopefully to pump priming say much will depend on how rapidly the spending progresses. The answer to that point, they say, will help determine whether priming will be sufficient to counteract the forces of depression, such as the shrinking purchasing power accompanying curtailed employment, and the lessened farm income accompanying lower commodity prices.

Cutting bank reserve requirements, and putting unused gold into the credit hopper, indicated a boost in excess reserves (unused funds) of the banking system to a total of about $3,750,000,000. Proponents of the plan argued that although the banks' excess reserves were already relatively high, the boost to this huge total would exert strong pressure to put unused funds to work and would bring encouragement to industry to dip into the credit reservoir.

1938's Farm Front Looks Good --In Everything Except Income

Associated Press Statistician

NEW YORK.—Human nature and Mother Nature took a decisive hand in the agricultural situation during the first six months this year, with huge potential harvests and plunging prices the result.

High prices for most farm products last year whetted the normal human appetite for profit, and caused heavy planting of many basic staples.

The huge seeded acreage as a bumper crop as the elements unloosed the wettest spring in years.

Forecasters stepped up estimates of production of such staples as wheat, corn, soybeans, and the grain prices of several fell to the lowest levels in four years.

Too Much Rain? Starting more than a year ago, the slump continued practically without interruption during the first half of the year. In the first half of 1937, however, wheat and cotton recovered a little on reports the heavy rainfall had damaged these crops somewhat.

Specialists placed more than 10 cents a bushel, cotton half a cent a pound. The general setback in prices was reflected in income. The department of agriculture placed cash marketings and farm benefit payments under the Agricultural Adjustment Act for the year through April at $2,059,000,000 compared with $2,518,000,000 a year ago, and 11 per cent setback.

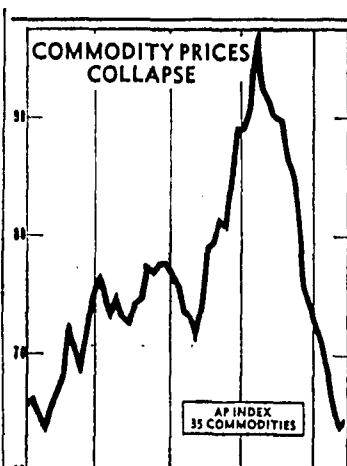

Analysts said this indicated total farm income for 1938 would be approximately $1,000,000,000 less than the previous year, or about $7,500,000,000 since the first third of the year normally accounts for roughly 27 per cent of total receipts.

Loans Increase. Government payments under the AAA dipped substantially below the comparable level in 1937. Commercial credit for corporate loans against principal staples, however, were up sharply, where ministration during one of the most trying periods of our history. While mistakes have doubtless been made, the country as a whole is really improved over what it was in 1933. It is easy to forget the deplorable condition in which we were when this administration came into power.

"During recent months we have had a recession, which, in my judgment, was caused by a wave of pessimism and fear, which I do not believe will long prevail. Signs of recovery are already at hand, and I believe that by fall there will be such a marked improvement that we will be well on the road to prosperity. In regard to spending let us remember we haven't spent as much yet to save lives as we did in the World War to kill our so-called enemies."

"It is charged that the administration has spent too much money, but let us not forget that during the four years of the Hoover administration, the national debt was increased by billions of dollars, without the trace of a single benefit to any community in the United States, while in the seven years of the Roosevelt administration the national debt has been increased fifteen billion dollars, ten billion dollars of which are in the nature of loans well secured that will be repaid, and the five billion dollars ex-

The prices of raw materials plunged during the past year as the market for many staples became glutted.

as a year ago loans were being paid.

Under legislation enacted in February the AAA can allot acreage for corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco and rice if two-thirds of the affected farmers agree. So far only about 10 per cent of the farmers have agreed, although wheat is expected to enter the ranks this fall.

The act also allows for marketing of such staples as wheat, cotton, soybeans, and the grain prices of several fell to the lowest levels in four years.

Big Wheat Carryover. The June 1 official winter wheat estimate totaled 760,623,000 bushels, second largest on record. It is the largest carryover since the 1934-35 season, when the carryover was 1,210,000,000 bushels.

Deducting domestic consumption of 650,000,000 bushels—which does not change much from year to year—leaves a surplus of 110,623,000 bushels, or about 15 per cent of the total supply.

There has already been added twenty billions of dollars in net income to the American people, and the money expended under the Roosevelt administration has been scattered throughout the entire United States, and evidence of its expenditure may be seen in every community in the country, over thirty-five million dollars of which has been spent in our congressional district, and about one-half of that sum has been paid directly to the farmers in our district.

"Notwithstanding our large national debt, it is proportionately less than that of other countries. The per capita national income in the United States is about 1-3 as large as in England, and less than 1-2 of what it is in France. The proportion of government debt to national income in the United States is 37 per cent, in England 178 per cent and in France 185 per cent. If those countries are still solvent, and no one denies that they are, then our country is three times as solvent."

On the basis of average yields of the past five years, cotton experts are predicting around 11,000,000-bale harvest this season. Coming on top of the mountainous 18,000,000 bale crop last year, analysts say such a harvest would result in the biggest carryover of fibre in history.

Livestock was the standout performer, price-wise, in the first half. After sinking to a four-year low early in April, hog, cattle and lamb quotations shot up to a new top for the year in June while other staples were hitting new lows.

This divergent trend reflected primarily a depleted animal population. The 1934 and 1936 droughts decimated herds and the high price of feeds grains last year made it more profitable to sell even low-weight animals than buy the feed necessary to fatten them up.

This year, however, corn is substantially under for former peaks and it has again become practical to fatten rather than ship to market. Farmers are therefore rebuilding their herds and, since demand has been well maintained, prices have sharpened because of the short supply.

Cows and Chickens Pay. Farm income from dairy products and poultry, accounting for 29 cents of every farm dollar received during the past decade, has shown a favorable comparison with last year. Cash income from this category during the first four months of the year, the Department of Agriculture estimates, was approximately in balance with 1937—dairy running a little higher, poultry a little lower.

Spot prices of major staples at last year's peak, the first of this year, and approximate current levels, follow:

	Current	1937
Wheat (bu.)	$2.87	$3.98
Corn (bu.)	93.0	84.0
Cotton (lb.)	8.84	8.84
Corn (bu.)	8.84	8.84

has the price been materially increased, but in addition to the price which the farmers have received for their products, they have received cash benefit payments.

"In addition to improving the price of agricultural products, the government has also spent millions of dollars for the benefit of farmers in rural electrification, in the construction of farm to market roads, in lowering interest rates, in encouraging and assisting in debt settlements, in providing farm foreclosures under the Frazier-Loomis act, and under the farm tenant act, has launched a program to loan money to tenant farmers to buy homes at 3 per cent. This program has just been launched, but if carried on, will do much toward solving the tenancy problem which has grown worse, especially in the south, during the last decade.

"Present funds for this move are inadequate, but we believe that increased support of this movement will result in the solution of many of our relief problems."

Sponsored Appropriation. At the recent session of Congress just adjourned, I sponsored and was active in securing an appropriation of four million dollars for the Cotton Research Laboratory; appropriation to pay off the cotton pool certificates

Wall Street Points To Gloomy Half Year Although Stocks Hold Up Better Than In 1937

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK.—(AP)—After five months of convalescence, the stock market in the sixth month of 1938 leaped out of bed and tried its strength.

Wall Street, as one market commentator put it, was lifted from "moribidity to ecstasy." Coming in the third week of June, it was one of the most sudden in recent Wall Street history, reminiscent of the spring of 1933.

A highlight of the period was a drastic shake-up of the stock exchange's administrative machinery, and no doubt hastened by the insolvency of a n d sending to prison

Whitney, a former president and leader of the so-called "old guard" faction of its membership.

End To 'Cracking Down' Toward midyear, the money street was encouraged by the subsidence of selling, slight signs of life in the market for new securities after months of stagnation, and a statement by SEC Chairman William O. Douglas that a new period of co-operation seemed under way, and "cracking down" on the stock exchange at an end.

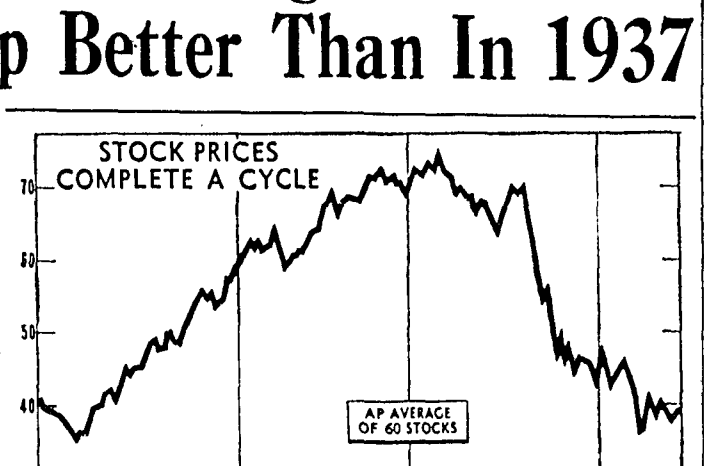

Despite the March slump, stocks held up much better in the first half of this year than in the last half of 1937. As of June 1, the exchange calculated the total quoted value of all listed shares at $34,500,000,000, off only $4,300,000,000 from Jan. 2, but down $22,700,000,000 from a year previously.

But bonds, which held up well through 1937, joined the decline of shares in the early months of 1938. This was particularly true of rails. The total quoted value of all issues listed in the stock exchange was $42,300,000,000 as of June 1, off about $4,700,000,000 since start of the year.

Drop in Stocks. Transactions on the stock exchange for the half year, approximately 100,000,000 shares, were the lowest for a comparable period since 1921, and less than half the volume in the same months last year.

In the listed bond market, the face value of transactions was issued under the 1933 plow-up campaign, and which have not been paid off; also, legislation to pay subsidy payments on the 1937 cotton crop by Aug. 15; increased appropriation for next year to loan tenant farmers funds with which to buy small farm homes, and an allocation of two hundred twelve million dollars of funds appropriated in recovery bill to pay farmers in effort to secure parity prices for cotton and other agricultural commodities. It will be necessary this year to beg for aid on commodity prices because mandatory provisions were included in the recovery measure which are effective automatically as given date if prices are fifty-two per cent below the parity price of sixteen and a half cents.

The farm problem is not yet solved. It is the most difficult of all to solve, because of the varied interests of agriculture, the varying size of crops, de-

This shows what happened to the longest uninterrupted bull market in stocks ever recorded. After 24 months without any month-end closing below the first trading day, ticker quotations collapsed in one of the sharpest declines in history.

the smallest for a similar period since 1918.

As midyear approached, there was wide discussion in Wall Street whether this inertia, invoking comparisons with conditions preceding upswings in 1932 and 1935, signalled the end of the bear market and transition to another recovery movement.

Late in the spring, speculation appeared to be guided chiefly by opinion as to how effective credit expansion and federal spending would be in promoting recovery in the second half of 1938 and in 1939. Touches of "inflation" sentiment again appeared on the surface of markets. Disclosure of the administration's program early in April was counted a big influence behind the rally in commodity prices from the March lows.

War Talk Hits Market. More war scares, especially during Germany's absorption of Austria in March, contributed toward unnerving markets early in the spring after hopes for a vigorous seasonal business upturn had encouraged a February rally in stocks and bonds. Mingled with the war talk was Washington's steps to increase U. S. armament expenditures, a curtain raiser to the $5,000,000,000 spending drive unleashed after the March fall in security and commodity prices.

Railroad problems worried the security markets. Many carrier bonds and stocks on the March decline fell almost to the extreme under the prospect of the prospect of big crops and efforts to cut costs improved the rail outlook a bit, as the financial distributed doped it, but rail bonds slumped again in June.

Exchange Gets New Deal The Whitney failure early in March, a stunning blow for the financial district, was mixed with the European war scare, and a waning hope for worthwhile spring business revival. But it was considered important in speeding approval of the change in stock exchange regime which brought William McChesney Martin, a 31-year-old liberal, to the head of the government board and plans for placing executive details in hands of a salaried president.

There followed a "harmony" feast between the brokerage community and representatives of the SEC, which last November had threatened to force the reorganization unless the exchange acted on its own. The new regime turned its attention to ways of expanding bond trading to replace some of the lost volume, and to reform of other practices to adopt the big market at Broad and Wall street to SEC ideals.

Hands Looking Up. Meanwhile, the bond market counted hopefully on continuation of the revival in new offerings after midyear. The increase in new offerings after federal authorities turned to credit expansion as a recovery measure sent U. S. treasury issues to peak prices for 1938, and short-term issues to the highest levels on record.

Top-grade corporate bonds clung to the coat tails of the treasury list on the rise. Lower-rated bonds lagged with stocks while Wall street waited for the business turn which would bring recovery in corporate earning power.

With those engaged in other industries. This is and will be the goal affecting the agricultural problem, and I shall continue to fight therefor until it is realized."

The congressman closed with a striking tribute to the chief executive of the nation, declaring he was the greatest friend of the "common man" ever to be installed in the White House.

(Copyright, 1937, Edgar A. Guest)

QUESTIONING.

This is ever what mothers cry:
"Why must beautiful baby die
And that weary and old and useless thing
Still be left for another spring?"
This is ever the questioning wild
Of all to sorrow unconsoled:
"Why must such beauty be blotted out
And evil and filth still stalk
about?"
Faith, is all that the sage can say.
Faith that this is the better way.
Faith that Heaven we should dread to know
If only the vile of the earth
should go.

TEAMWORK

The present state of mind
in this country, however
natural it may be, is certainly not calculated to cure depression. It is like trying to climb a steep hill
with locked brakes. There is a deadlock not only between business and government, but among manufacturer, worker and consumer. Stubbornness is regarded as a virtue. Prices and wages and interest are kept up beyond reason, and as a result profits vanish.

"The man who wants to build a house, to buy new equipment, or to launch a business," says Roger Bab-
son, the business economist,
"reckons he is licked before he starts. So he keeps his money in the bank. There the banker, with a pegged
interest rate, lets it lie idle.
Everyone to whom I have talked lately makes this comment: 'I am sitting tight
until this thing is cleared up.' Everybody is riding in the cart. No one is pushing
it. That is why we have business stagnation in America today."

The government has resumed spending on a big scale, to shove the motor oil
dead center and get things going again. It is spending the people's money and credit, of course, and there are many who honestly fear
that this policy is unwise—
that deflation should be allowed to run its course until
"the natural forces of recovery" begin to operate. Others—and there are some prominent economists
among them—honestly
doubt whether it is safe to let nature run its course this time, whether our economy,
our social and political structure, can stand the strain in its present weakened condition.

Mr. Babson thinks the only thing to do now is for everybody to take hold and push, especially business.
Government alone, whether right or wrong, can't put us
over the top. "I believe,"
he says, "that if the business men, in total, would match this government expenditure, we would quickly be on the way up."
"How should business
spend its share? On advertising, in putting workers back into employment, in purchasing wisely for future needs, in lowering prices enough to appeal to those who already have money to spend."

AN UNGUARDED RULER
Hendrik Willem van
Loon, author and artist,
was in Stockholm for the recent celebration of King Gustaf's 80th birthday anniversary. His first story, written two days before the big date, was devoted to something which struck him
as so unusual in this year
of 1938 as to be notable.
He was riding in a taxi-
cab when he observed
crowds of people lining
both sides of the street.
The object of their interest
was a simple black car that moved at a leisurely pace ahead of him. It was the royal car, and the king was in it. The people bowed and smiled at him, dispersing as soon as he had passed.
"I well remember," writes Van Loon, "similar occasions when my repertorial
duties had made me follow
other rulers, our own President included, to some official function. Then there had always been a vast army of soldiers, policemen
and detectives, and, in the dictatorial countries, these had invariably been reinforced by armored cars
with machine guns. But of all such display of force
there was not a vestige to be seen while we ambled
across the bridges that connect the different islands of this Venice of the North."

It seems to be source of pride for Swedish kings in modern times that they need no special protection,
because "every man, woman and child" in the kingdom is part of the only bodyguard considered. With all their confidence in their own strength, and all their claims of popular devotion,
one can hardly imagine Mussolini or Hitler or Stan-
lin in such a position.

"HOME ON THE RANGE"*WAGE-AND-HOUR COMMENT

You get curiously contradictory opinions regarding the wage-and-hour law, as you read the papers and talk to people. You find the supposedly conservative Boston Herald, for instance,
saying:

"Massachusetts and New England have been overwhelmingly in favor of a Federal law of some kind establishing reasonable minimum wages and maximum
hours. Private agreements, interstate acts, regional understandings and action by individual States have all been futile. Forward-looking communities have become the victims of their own laudable efforts. Even New Englanders who dislike further extension of bureaucracy and dread additional invasions of the fields where the States
should have legislated, have given up hope of any amelioration except by vote of Congress. The pending
bill has many obvious defects, but it is at least a beginning, it is fair to everybody, and therefore it will be received thankfully
throughout New England."

And you find the independent Free Press in Detroit saying:
"The bill already has aroused more sectional feeling than any other measure Congress has undertaken to handle in a long time. Behind the controversy over it is a desperate struggle between geographical and rival interests which are a sharp warning that it never
can be administered amicably or successfully, but at best will be a fruitful cause
of ill-feeling and bitterness
between States and areas,
and consequently should
not be enacted in any form.
The measure is hopelessly vicious, and must remain so whatever amendments may be made in it, because it is a flagrantly political approach to an economic question."

Such a sweeping piece of legislation, affecting so many interests in untold
ways, is impossible to judge
now. The wisest attitude is to wait and see, giving it a fair trial.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS RECESSES FOR SUMMER TODAY

AUSTIN, June 24.—(AP)—The court of criminal appeals recessed for the summer today after winding up business with decisions in five cases. It will not meet again until the first week
in October.

The court said that in the nine-
month term which the recess ended 809 cases were filed with the court, 746 original opinions
were delivered and 272 opinions
were given motions for re-hearing.

Five original cases remained under submission, as well as seven motions for rehearing. One hundred and thirty-three cases
and 22 motions for re-hearing
were filed too late for submission.

The court reversed and remanded the case of Antonio Mungilla, from Willacy county, given 50 years on conviction of assault with intent to rape a 16-
year-old girl at Raymondville.

It said the evidence indicated Mungilla was guilty of assault of an aggravated character, but failed to show assault with intent to rape.

The case of Ray Music, from Collin county, assessed seven years for burglary, was affirmed.
That of Hydra Loving, from Travis county, sentenced to eight years imprisonment for burglary,
was dismissed on the request of the appellant.

A motion for re-hearing by Gaudalope Cantu, charged in Hidalgo county with murdering his wife and seeking release from jail on bond, was overruled. The court previously had affirmed judgment of a lower court denying release by a writ of habeas corpus.

Request of Billy Jean McIntyre, convicted in Tom Green county of driving an automobile while intoxicated and sentenced to pay a fine of $75 and serve 60 days in jail, was permission to file a second motion for rehearing was refused. The sentence had been affirmed and rehearing denied.

The supreme court, which handles civil cases, does not take a formal summer recess
as does the court of criminal appeals. However, it usually does not meet for months in the summer when judges leave for personal vacations.

The summer recess of the courts of criminal appeals is enforced by law, while also provides the supreme court must be available for work at all times.

DIRECTORS TEXAS METHODIST GIFTS ORGANIZATION MET
At a called meeting of the directors of the Texas State Methodist Foundation held in the Methodist Publishing Company building in Dallas Thursday, Bishop H. A.
Boaz of Fort Worth was elected to the board to succeed Dr. C. C.
Seleman, president of S. M. U., Dallas, and recently made a bishop, with his work in another state.

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, one of the new bishops and the bishop in several conferences in Texas, with part time headquarters in Dallas,
will automatically succeed Bishop Boaz, Bishop Holt being the active bishop and Bishop Boaz the retired bishop of the organization.
W. W. Fondren, oil man and Methodist layman of Houston,
president of the organization, presided at the meeting Thursday.
The board voted to hold the next meeting in Houston some time
after September.

The foundation has recently received a charter from the state of Texas; the duties are to receive monies, wills, bequests and other gifts for Methodist organizations
in the state of Texas.

The board voted that a special committee be named to bring in at the next meeting a report on ways, means and plans of organization, purposes and other matters touching on the successful operation of the foundation. The committee is composed of Dr. A. J.
Weeks, editor Southwestern Advocate, Dallas; Dr. J. W. Mills,
pastor, First Church, Beaumont;
W. W. Fondren, Houston, and Boyce Martin, Corsicana.

Boyce Martin of this city, Methodist layman and lay representative of the Central Texas conference, attended the meeting Thursday.

PLANNING INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN IMPROVED HEALTH CONDITIONS

An intensive educational campaign designed to improve general health conditions and consciousness in Corsicana during the next year was planned Friday at a meeting of the public health committee of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the committee headed by Dr. J. Wilson Davis as chairman and including Mrs. F. E.
McPherson, Mrs. J. W. McAdams,
W. H. Norwood and Dr. H. B.
Lucky, field representative of the state health department. They were advised by the official that only a complete health survey
prior to the year was planned for this county because of its size. It was decided to attempt the educational campaign for a year rather than attempt to finance the county unit program
at this time.

The state representative also commented the plans for a syphilis clinic in Corsicana and stated plans for the distribution of federal aid on such projects
were now being formulated but details had not yet been made public.

The committee also went on record as asking the East Texas Chamber of Commerce to aid in sponsoring legislation that would enable counties to get away from having to secure health funds
from the general levies and make it possible for a small special levy to be made for the support of such units.

Skating Around World, Couple In Corsicana Friday

Given five months to live, Jack Skates Hyland in 1929 took up
seriously his favorite pastime, skating, and has been at it ever since, and today in Corsicana on his second skating expedition
around the world he was the picture of health. He and his wife of a week whom he married in Waco, skated to Houston and today were en route to Texas.

It took Hyland nine years to skate around the world. He went through every state in the Union except Montana and Wyoming, and through 82 foreign countries. He filled 122 scrap books, wore out 162 pairs of skates, and 6300 skate wheels,
and made a good living selling picture postcards of himself and lecturing.

In skating around the world
he skates up the gangplank of his boat and then keeps skating
around the deck.
"I couldn't claim to have skated
around the world unless I kept moving the whole time. I was on the ship," he said. "It gets pretty tiring some that way,
but my partner holds me up and keeps me moving. Then when the ship docks I catch up on my sleep and start out on the highways again."

when the truck he was driving

day afternoon. Noble Crowder also of Houston, driving a Houston Inland Company truck, received
minor injuries and was discharged
after first aid treatment.
P. and S. Hospital attaches said
today they did not regard Par-quette's injuries as critical but said he would have to remain in

OPENING EXPENSE ACCOUNTS DUE TO BE FILED TO JUNE 28

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL
AUSTIN, June 24.—(AP)—The
first accounts of candidates' expenditures in Texas' political wars this year were in order today and the final date for filing
them was June 28.

While the total of all the money to be spent in the great shakeup of officeholders never will be known, Secretary of State Edward Clark estimated expenses
preliminary to the first democratic primary July 28 would exceed $4,000,000.

His estimate was made as thousands of candidates stepped up campaigns in a drive for the first big election test of 1938 in Texas, now less than a month distant.

In addition to intensification of campaigns, appearance at numerous straw votes with conflicting results and growing injection of personalities in candidates'
speeches and statements were noted.

Clark coupled his estimate of $4,000,000 primary with a declaration the campaign expenditures
law was out of date.
"I believe $4,000,000 spent for all political purposes by the candidates and their friends in Texas this year is a conservative estimate," he said.

"As in other years, the election
will be a great medium for the redistribution of wealth.
"The expenditures law belongs to the horse and buggy days; it ought to be changed."
He estimated approximately 10,000 candidates were running for state, district county and predict offices and allowed an average of $400 expenses for each.
"And, of course," he added,
"many candidates will spend
much larger sums."

A total of 72 cotton checks were

ROOSEVELT CLAIMS RIGHT TO INTERVENE CONGRESS PRIMARIES

PRESIDENT ALSO REVIEWS LEGISLATION ENACTED BY
RECENT CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(P)—President Roosevelt declaring a right to intervene in democratic primaries, gave virtual notice today he was prepared to fight personally for election of a congress favorable to his policies.

In his 12th "fireside chat" by radio to the nation last night, the President made it plain he would not hesitate to speak or when he thought a contest between a "liberal" and a "conservative" warranted.

"As President of the United States, I am not asking the voters of the country to vote for democrats next November as opposed to republicans or members of any other party," he said. "Nor am I, as President, taking part in democratic primaries."

"As the head of the democratic party, however, charged with the responsibility of carrying out the definitely liberal declaration of principles set forth in the 1936 democratic platform, I feel that I have every right to speak in those few instances where there may be a clear issue between candidates for a democratic nomination involving these principles, or involving a clear misuse of my own name."

Besides touching on politics, he reviewed the legislation enacted by the last congress and asked for the cooperation of capital and labor in maintaining wages and in replacing federal "pump priming" outlays with private spending.

No Special Session.

"Barling unforeseen events," he told his listeners, there would be no special session of congress.

He mentioned also the defeat last year of his proposal to reorganize the courts and asserted the net result had been "an important victory for the people of the United States—a lost battle which won a war."

Asserting that in one way or another the "real objectives" of his court message to congress had been attained, he added:

"The attitude of the supreme court towards constitutional questions is entirely changed. Its recent decisions are eloquent testimony of a willingness to collaborate with the two other branches of government to make democracy work."

His address was sprinkled with pungent thrusts at his opponents. At one point, he asserted that "conspirators" had waged a "concerted campaign of defeatism" last year in an effort to stop governmental reform.

Referring to Copperheads, he continued, "that it was the copperheads who—in the days of the Civil war, the war between the States—tried to make the nation split in two and return to peace—yes, peace at any price."

Even though a few persons "are tired or frightened by the inescapable pace of this modern world," he commented, government can not "take a holiday of a year, or a month, or even a week, and let its efforts 'to meet continuing problems'."

Turning to a discussion of politics, he said the conclusion of his thirty-minute radio address was a line between liberalism and conservatism.

He said the former recognizes that "the new conditions throughout the world call for a new government."

"Those of us in America who hold to this school of thought insist that these new remedies can be adopted and successfully maintained in this country under the present form of government if we use government as an instrument to provide these remedies," he continued.

Does Not Recognize Need.

"The opposing or conservative school of thought, as a general proposition, does not recognize the need for or the right to step in and take action to meet these new problems."

Although making it emphatically clear that he felt free to make known his views on any contest between representatives of these schools of thought, Mr. Roosevelt said he would not "indicate a preference in a state primary merely because a candidate is liberal or in outlook, had conscientiously differed with me on any single issue."

Then, in a statement which made some listeners think of charges which have been brought against Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., the president said he was concerned about the attitude of candidates and their sponsors "with respect to the rights of American citizens to assemble peaceably and to express publicly their views and opinions on important social and economic issues."

"There can be no constitutional democracy in any community which denies to the individual his 'freedom of speech and worship' as he wishes," he said.

When he turned to discussion of the activities of the 76th congress, he said the "although it left many things undone," it had "achieved more for the future good of the country than any congress did between the end of 1933 world war and the spring of 1938."

High on his list of the legislators' "more important" achievements, the president mentioned the farm and wage hour bills and the resolution creating a committee to study monopoly.

After asking capital and labor to stand together to resist wage cuts, Mr. Roosevelt said reports that two United States Steel subsidiaries had cut steel prices.

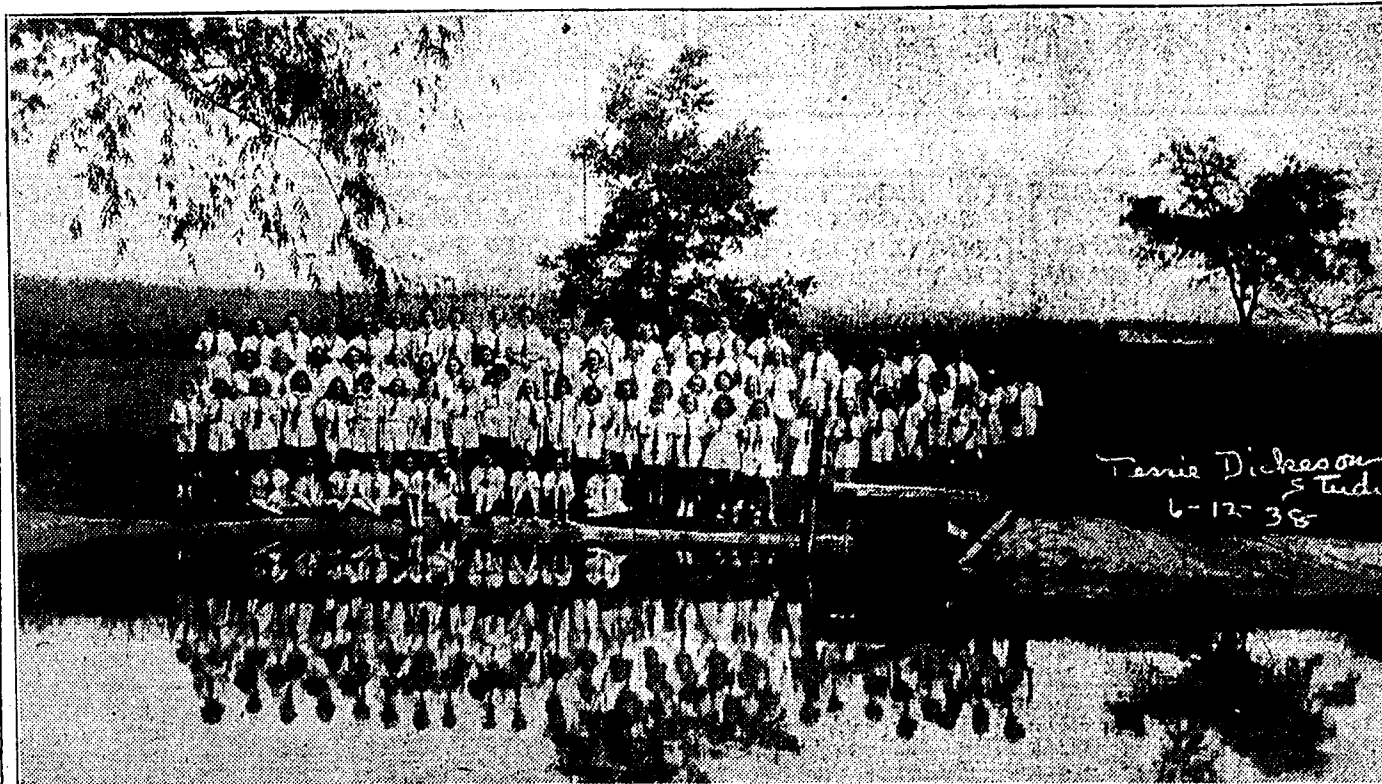

"I was gratified to know that this reduction involved no wage cuts," he said. "The management ought to be given to industry which accepts a large volume and high wage policy."

The president said that present economic conditions now are far better than "in the terrible winter of 1932-33." Although it is too early to give more than an estimate, he said he hoped for a $50,000,000,000 national income this year, compared with $70,000,000,000 last year and $38,000,000,000 in 1932.

dent Roosevelt charted last night in his address to the nation.

Some senators and representatives upheld the chief executive's right to intervene in primaries.

Others contended intervention would be "dangerous" to the democratic party.

Comment included: Senator Burke (D-Neb): "I think it is entirely ethical and proper for the chief executive, as head of his party, to take action in primaries if he wants to do it. The country will resent it, and party members in the various states will want to make their own decisions. The President is ill-advised if he wants to inject himself into the primaries."

Senator Sheppard (D-Tex): "The address clarified all the issues and shows the President a militant liberal. He is entirely within his rights in discussing candidates for office. He spoke on principles to the country at large, and that is entirely proper."

BIGGEST CROWD IN POLITICAL HISTORY AT O'DANIEL RALLY

THOUSANDS PEOPLE PACKED
COURTHOUSE LAWN TO HEAR CANDIDATE

By PAUL MOORE
Daily Sun Staff Writer.

W. Lee O'Daniel, Fort Worth flour manufacturer, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in the approaching primaries, was accompanied by his famous Hilly Billy Boys, Friday evening addressed what political observers agreed was the largest crowd ever to attend a political meeting in the history of Navarro county.

All available space on the courthouse grounds were packed with standing people, apparently eager to hear the Fort Worth business executive in his candidacy as the representative and exponent of the poor and common people to rid the state government of professional politicians and give Texas an honest and fair business government.

Hundreds were sitting on fire escapes and on the roofs of buildings in addition to all windows being crowded. The speakers platform was crowded to capacity while many had vantage points in trees and on automobiles.

Hundreds drove by in automobiles, unable to find parking places within blocks and blocks of the courthouse and were unable to see or hear, it was conservatively estimated that there were 10,000 people here for that occasion.

The Hilly Billy boys received much applause while the speaker on numerous occasions was greeted with "amen" and cheering.

Not a Politician, O'Daniel declared. "I know nothing about politics except what I have learned since the campaign began—and that is plenty—but I do know business."

"I would not be running for governor today if 54,499 citizens of Texas had not requested me to by letter, postal cards and petitions."

"At first I took it as a joke. I thought they just felt friendly towards me because of my radio broadcasts during the last ten years, but when the numbers began growing into the thousands I began to think that there was something to it after all—so here I am before you—the 'citizens candidate.'"

"If you elect me as your governor, the first thing I shall do will be to summon to Austin representative business men and women from every walk of life to confer with me and to advise me as to the best way to get Texas out of the terrible mess it is in now, and onto a sound business basis."

"I intend, if elected, to make a list of every state employee, giving him his duties and salary. If he is producing the goods and is working for the interest of the state of Texas—he will hold his job. If he is simply holding down a political job in repayment for some campaign debt—he gets out. That is what any large business corporation would do and it also is simply plain every day horse sense."

Believes in Advertising.

"I believe in advertising. I know as a business man that advertising increases sales and business. From personal experience I know my own business has increased at one time to 800 per cent through proper advertising methods. I intend to advertise the possibilities of business in the state of Texas and try my best to get more factories and industries here. That will be lowering of the tax burden and help solve the unemployment question."

There is no reason why the 6,000,000 citizens of Texas should not wear Texas made shoes. Instead, there is but one little shoe factory in the state. If the people will stand in back of me, I'll try my best to have Texas make clothing, household furniture, and many other necessities of life, and manufacture right here in the good old state of Texas. It can be done with the assistance and support of the people."

In referring to the old age pension, O'Daniel drew much laughter from his audience when he told of the "pussy-footing" old age pension inspector, who, if they found a piece of chewing gum stuck over night on Grandpa's bedpost, would cut the old lady's pension—and if they caught Grandpa milking his one and only cow, his pension, too, would be lopped off.

"Why," he declared, "I have a letter here from an old gentleman who says that he paid the mortgage off on his little home and when the inspectors found it out—they cut off his pension entirely. After many months of investigation he was finally put back on the pension list."

"So my advice to you folks who have reached the age in life when you want to take things easy—if you owe an honest debt—don't pay it—because the 'pussy-footers' will find it out and take your pension away from you."

Advocate Pension.

O'Daniel advocated paying the payment of $30 a month to every person who had reached the age of 65 and had resided in the state the requisite length of time. $15 of this to be paid by the state and $15 by the federal government.

"I believe in the age limit being the deciding factor in the payment of a pension," he declared. "I think the old age pension commission should be taken from the hands of the professional politicians and placed in the hands of competent, honest business men and women who would deal fairly and squarely with these people who are entering the evening of their lives."

The monied interests and the professional politicians know that it takes a lot of money to pay off the old age pensions and they hate to shell out.

O'Daniel said that he wanted to be a tolerant executive if the people elected him to the high office of the state and that he would treat the rich and poor alike.

Latch String Off.

He concluded by inviting everyone down to the executive mansion provided he is elected, to visit.

"The latch string will be out today and every day," he said, "come down and see me. Bring your dinner and horse feed and spend the day."

As in every city and town visited by this "candidate that takes a lot of time to get to Corsicana declared that they could not remember the time, even during the hectic campaigning of Pat Neff and Jim Ferguson, of having seen such a crowd of people out for their own manufacturer and the 'people's candidate,' last night.

The O'Daniel clan, with the exception of Mrs. O'Daniel, is out in the field helping "Our Pat" as they call him. Mrs. O'Daniel stays at home, where O'Daniel has his headquarters, and superintends the answering of telegrams, letters and acts as hostess to the hundreds of callers who wish her husband well.

Daughter Gives Out Cards.

Molly, his 15-year-old daughter passed out cards with the song "Beautiful Texas" printed on one side and O'Daniel's photograph on the other, Pat, 19 and Mike, 18, his two sons, play in the Hilly Billy orchestra.

After his meetings people crowd about him to press his hand and many times it has taken more than an hour before he can get to his automobile and leave for another city or town. Doctors have been treating his right hand, bruised by too much hand shaking. But he uses his left and will continue to do so, he says, until the right is O.K. again.

He left here Friday night for Dallas, where he will speak at Fair Park Saturday, winding up a week of strenuous campaigning in North Texas. He will invade Central Texas on Monday.

The candidate spoke of the statements of the political writers that he would have to endure enormous crowds flocking to hear him and switching to his support. He said that immediately after his opening address in Waco a short time ago the political writers predicted he would be in the run-off for the second primary election and now some are writing he will win in the first.

"Business men and women, many of them the biggest in their lines, are switching to our side by the thousands," he declared.

Making No Promises.

The candidate said he was making no promises or predictions what he would do on certain matters, but would give the state questions the same consideration that business men do to questions made the decision when the time came as no man knows what will be necessary to do from day to day in the conduct of a business institution. He declared he would prepare an inventory of the state properties as soon as he was put in the governor's chair, if elected.

O'Daniel promised the mothers and fathers of Texas that if he was in the governor's office he would use every power at his command to keep their husbands and sons from going to any foreign war if a world war breaks out, but if a foreign power should invade America, "we would let them have it."

The candidate rapped candidates who were being paid by big business interests. "If elected they will serve their masters," he declared.

O'Daniel spoke of turning down several offers of assistance from big donors.

STEEL PRICES CUT THREE-SIX DOLLARS PER TON ON FRIDAY

CARNEGIE ILLINOIS COMPANY STARTS PRICE REDUCTION; OTHERS FOLLOW

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(P)—Big Steel's surprise

cutting of steel prices $3 to $4 a ton in Pittsburgh and as high as $6 in Chicago, left the industry puzzling today about wages.

The decreases announced yesterday by Carnegie Illinois Steel, the nation's largest producer and largest subsidiary of U. S. Steel, ranged from 7 to 21 per cent and eliminated differentials between Pittsburgh and Chicago.

The new prices approximated the level of ten years ago and were made, the company said, to meet competitive conditions, officials added informally the wage question was not involved and that anything affecting them must be discussed with the CIO's steel workers organizing committee.

The Tennessee Coal Iron and Railroad Company, U. S. Steel subsidiary in Birmingham, Ala., announced a corresponding reduction.

Alabama's Governor Bibb Graves and Senator John A. Bankhead predicted the steel price cut would mean "great industrial progress for the south."

Elimination of the price differential ended a 20-year fight by southern states which had criticized them as "discriminatory."

Independent producers were silent but some of their leaders agreed "off the record" they would have to match the new scale.

Most of the industry expected wages would be slashed, despite President Roosevelt's comment last night that he was "gratified" to know the reduction, made for the announced purpose of stimulating business, "involved no wage cut."

Observers pointed out that Big Steel alone, if all its units made corresponding reductions, would lose $50,000,000 or more in revenue on such a volume as last year's of $964,000,000.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(P)—U. S. Steel Corp. in brief stated today said none of its officials has given any assurances that wage reduction will not follow steel price reductions announced yesterday.

Expenditures incurred in administration of the AAA farm programs were listed at $18,977,886, of which $12,799,803 was salaries. The item did not include expenses of local AAA committees.

Beauty Diary

Of Edna Kent Forbes

Miss Forbes tells you today what a skin tonic really is and how easily you may make one for yourself.

While we rarely hear of an astringent any more, that is just what a skin tonic, or a skin fresher, really is! The effect is to tighten the skin almost at once and keep it in that improved state for an hour or so. Some of these astringents are heating, bringing the blood up to the skin. The effect is surprising, a pale complexion made E. K. Forbes, suddenly pink and healthy-looking. Surprisingly, too, that the women who have these heating lotions put on their skins never care what went into the stuff that worked such a miracle in a few minutes. These heating mixtures, whether in creams or liquids, are the most costly of all the preparations one may purchase for beauty treatment. The extra cost, I presume, is for the transformation that takes place so quickly, and not for the heating ingredient that went into the mixture.

If one does not mind spending money for indulgences like this one, it is all right, but when some essential need must be passed because of it, it is wrong. It is an easy matter to make a discrimination about where there money should go, and the very least of it should go into astringents, whether they are called tonics, fresheners, or by any name that suggests that it does anything miraculous. A skin fresher is delightful when one is tired, and especially in the hot weather. A few drops of tincture of benzoin does this for you. Or rose water in which a few drops of the tincture are added. Dab this over the skin from a moistened piece of absorbent cotton. Orange-flower water with ten per cent of alcohol added will be a marvelous astringent. Ice cold water is still another fresher and astringent.

Mrs. H. Brillantine is a very fine oil used for giving sheen to the hair. A few drops are all that are needed, and these are rubbed over the palm of the hand, then run lightly over the head. Any fine oil will answer the purpose.

M. G.—Buttermilk is a mild bleach for the skin, and it will not be so drying as the lemon juice. The juice of cucumber bleaches, too, and does not cause the stinging sensation of the lemon.

"We have heard much talk recently that there will be more schools for artisans, a clearer recognition of the respective zones occupied by the artisans and by the engineers and a much enhanced status for professional engineering."

"There will be less economic discrimination against the craftsman; there will be a mighty aid to self-respect, moral force and intellectual poise and stability in the part of young men no longer compelled to undergo defeat at the hands of an academic curriculum in order to receive some education beyond the high school level."

Dr. Widhop said many schools of engineering have not seen their responsibility to exercise greater degree of selectivity

ADDRESS DELIVERED SATURDAY NIGHT BY CROCKETT CANDIDATE

THOMAS SELF GIVES VIEWS CONCERNING CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT

Thomas Self, candidate for governor of Texas, spoke in the interest of his candidacy at the courthouse Saturday night before a small crowd. The gubernatorial aspirant put forth his views for radical departures from present government, and appealed for a business administration of the affairs in the state house. He reviewed the rise in Texas during the past quarter of a century, espoused the cause of abolishing the various elective departments of the state government and appealed for the election of a chief executive with power to appoint the heads of the various commissions and departments. He favors the appointment of a broad-minded, experienced head of the utilities after the proposed abolishment of the railroad commission and endorse a permanent program for the farming interests.

Self spoke at length relative to allowing the old age pensioners to fill out their own application blanks, with safeguards to the interests of the state. In the beginning of his remarks, Self said the reason he announced his candidacy was because he was waiting to see if some other candidate would advance his ideas of governmental reform.

Governor Without Power. He declared that under the present set-up in Austin, little power remains in the hands of the governor and he is governor in name only. He suggested that the railroad commission be abolished as it has, he said, served its purpose. He advanced the desire to make the state school superintendent a position of general, and other departmental heads appointive by the governor so they would be subject to the chief executive.

He said the state taxes in 1915 amounted to $14,000,000, and in 1937 they had reached the staggering amount of $154,000,000. Turning his attention to the railroad commission, Self said he had never heard of any term of office paying a dividend to the people while it costs $1,500,000 annually to operate it. He said there was a need for it when it was created, but it is not needed now.

He advanced his idea to increase the truck load limit from 7,000 to 16,000 pounds.

Favors Reduction. The candidate promised if elected he would favor a reduction in taxes of one third, and advanced a proposal to elect a governor for only one term of not less than six years and not more than six years.

He spoke in behalf of organized labor, old age pensions, school teacher pensions, a better farm and ranch conditions. The speaker asserted that the cut in acreage was inviting foreign competition, but urged that the present federal farm set-up be observed this year. He stated, however, he did not believe the farm question had been solved whereby the farmers could plan for a stable program.

Turning his attention to public health, the candidate spoke of the many deaths from heart attacks and cancer. He declared he would put the entire resources of the state health department in an effort to get people to learn how to live. He spoke of the rapid manner of living in the present time, and spoke at length on the benefits of proper dieting, giving a number of personal experiences and observations.

"Diet is responsible for seventy-five per cent of drunkenness," he declared. Mr. Self asserted, and told of the diets of the old patriarchs of Biblical times and their long lives.

The candidate declared he believed much of the cutting down on pensions was due to promises of rewards of friends in the state political set-up at the present time, and closed his address with the declaration that he was under obligation to give the people the race and if elected would be a governor for all the people.

STATE HEALTH HEAD GIVES SOME DON'TS FOR FOURTH OF JULY

AUSTIN, June 27.—(Sp.)—It would be a glorious Fourth of July if no accidents occurred to mar the joy of celebrating our one hundred and sixty-second anniversary of independence, declared Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer. It is most unfortunate that a day of joy and celebration is marred by the occurrence of one of sadness and sorrow in many homes.

It is not alone the wounds received from explosives that increase our death toll. Injuries from automobile accidents, splinters, nails, and other penetrating wounds in which dirt may be carried into the skin, heighten the danger of tetanus, or lockjaw as the disease is commonly called.

Tetanus is fatal in a large proportion of cases. Fortunately, it can be prevented by the use of antitoxin must be administered promptly following the accident. Treatment after the disease develops is rarely successful. Prevention is the key to the avoidance of such wounds and proper medical treatment.

A few don'ts for the Fourth of July celebration would not be amiss.

1. Don't be careless in the handling of explosives.

2. Don't look into firecrackers which have failed to explode.

3. Don't exercise recklessly and at excessive speeds.

4. Don't overdo in swimming, especially in water of unknown depth.

Last and most important: Don't let a get prompt medical attention if a wound is suffered.

CHART ILLUSTRATES ACCURATE COST OF HOME CONSTRUCTION

S. K. BRIETZ, WHITESELLE BRICK AND LUMBER CO., GETS RECOGNITION

Extensive recognition has been achieved recently by S. K. Brietz, secretary-treasurer of the Whiteselle Brick and Lumber Company, for a graphic illustration of the costs of various portions of a complete modern home.

The sketch was originally prepared by Mr. Brietz to give prospective homebuilders an accurate picture of the costs involved in house construction; after Federal Housing Administration officials saw the graph at a meeting held in Corsicana a few weeks ago, they asked the owner to have some blueprints made, and have some adopted them for their own use.

A copy of the sketch was sent to the American Lumberman, one of the leading trade publications of the nation, and it was reproduced on the front cover of the periodical in its last issue. Several letters have been received commending the graph since its publication.

This illustration is simply a circle divided off into the various sectors showing the proportionate cost of each phase of home construction; while the sketch used was based on a complete cost of $4,500, Mr. Brietz pointed out the same proportions would be maintained in the construction of any modern home.

According to Mr. Brietz' sketch the following proportions would hold true:

Item	PerCent	Cost
